In response to the escalating youth mental health crisis and increased demand for support services since 2021, mental health training for teachers has become crucial. This training plays a key role in:

- 1 Student Support:
Empowers teachers to recognize and address mental health issues, ensuring timely support and referrals for struggling students.
- 2 Teacher Well-being:
Provides tools for managing stress and preventing burnout, crucial in the high-pressure teaching profession.
- 3 Supportive Classrooms:
Enables the creation of positive, stress-reduced environments that promote student well-being and community.
- 4 Stigma Reduction:
Equips teachers to challenge misconceptions about mental illness, fostering inclusivity and acceptance.

Overall, mental health training enhances the well-being of both students and teachers, contributing to a more supportive, inclusive learning environment.
